

Speech by Christopher Prentice, former Ambass between two countries operate at many levels and have many constituent elements. But the best relationships depend on a bedrock of mutual affection and esteem between peoples. The British and the Italians are not easily categorised. We come in so many different shapes and sizes. But wherever I went in Italy, I encountered

May I at this point digress to express to Ambassador