

For several months following this incident, up to the liberation of the area, I continued to help prisoners, providing them with bread, wine, clothing, cigarettes and anything else I could lay my hands on.